

Being a construction contractor requires persistence and a willingness to take risks. It requires will and discipline to succeed, not the unreasonable overly optimistic Pollyanna approach.

Construction is a competitive industry that can be harsh at

About the Author

coaching and training company. He is also president of Egan Publications Inc.

See more at www.joeeagan.com.
